

Forrestania Joint Venture Update

Further exploration for gold and base metals is planned at the Forrestania Joint Venture although no significant assay results were returned from the recently completed reverse circulation drill program.

The drilling was designed to test three electromagnetic (EM) conductors previously reported. Sulphides were encountered in the RC drill samples that may be an explanation for the two southernmost EM conductors. Drilling did not explain the northernmost conductor hence further exploration is planned to assist with explaining this particular EM conductor.

EM surveys have now covered approximately 20% of the Forrestania Joint Venture area and approvals are currently being sought for clearing to enable further surveys to be completed. Once all required approvals have been obtained, EM surveys will be completed and any additional EM conductors identified will be tested with drilling. The Forrestania Joint Venture is a 50/50 joint venture between Hannans Reward Ltd and Cullen Resources Ltd.
